Positioning Your Argument - Learning Historical Research By exploring other scholars' work, you open up the possibility of discovering exciting, imaginative connections. Chances are good that a story you want to tell has corollaries in other periods of history and relates to other schools of thought, literary genres, scientific studies, or political fields. The Neglected Books Page - www.NeglectedBooks.com: Where ... I love to page through old issues of The Saturday Review, the TLS, and other book reviews of the past for the advertisements as much as for the reviews. Browsing through old copies of the TLS online recently, I noticed the following in the lower left corner of a full-page Hutchinson's ad from 7 September 1940: Two of the books sounded interesting: Geoffrey S. Garnier's Bargasoles and Women Should Not Be Allowed To Vote "Return Of Kings One fifth of US households now claim food stamps. That's 47 million Americans, living in the richest and most successful society that has ever existed, where food is cheap and plentiful beyond the wildest dreams of people living 100 years ago, who are supposedly so pathetic and helpless that they need the government to feed them, as if they were children."

The Hidden Message in Pixar's Films - Science Not Fiction ... Pixar demands competent evil will always be overcome, with little permanent loss, by giddy goodness. Pixar says everything is bright and beautiful, has rights, and nobody ever uses a toilet. Why It's Ethical to Eat Meat | Michael Ruhlman Several weeks ago, New York Times columnist Ariel Kaminer created a contest asking people to argue that eating meat is an ethical decision. Kaminer was pleased by the response. Judges included carnivores, vegetarians, and perhaps the most thoughtful and compelling vegan living, Peter Singer (and it's worth clicking the Kaminer link for the judges' overall responses to the many essays they read).
